SPL set to join Saskatchewan's libraries in celebrating Aboriginal Storytelling Month

Saskatoon Public Library (SPL) is excited to again be celebrating Aboriginal Storytelling Month with a range of programming for all ages throughout February.

For 15 years, libraries, schools and organizations across Saskatchewan have been hosting Aboriginal Storytelling Month events in February. This year, SPL is hosting programs with three well-known Indigenous storytellers, a film series featuring Indigenous filmmakers, puppet shows that highlight Indigenous wisdom, and a Metis dance party.

SPL is also hosting the Saskatchewan Aboriginal Storytelling Month wrap-up event—a storytelling's workshop—at the Cliff Wright Branch on Mar 1.

"SPL is thrilled to again be partnering with so many creative and talented individuals to make possible this wide range of Indigenous-focussed programming," said Carol Cooley, SPL's CEO and Director of Libraries. "These programs are a great way for the community as a whole to become familiar with Indigenous knowledge, culture, and the tremendous artistic talent that exists within Indigenous communities."

To learn more about SPL's Indigenous Storytelling Month programs, pick up a copy of the Program Guide at any SPL location or visit www.saskatoonlibrary.ca.
